THE SUPREME NEED

JESUS CHRIST THE ONE POWER
NEEDED IN EVERY LIFE,
SAYS EVANGELIST

A large number of children, young people and adults heard Mr. Habbick at the Presbyterian church yesterday afternoon.

The Holy Spirit loves children. He wants them to understand what I am talking about so I have asked Him to let me speak so they may know what I am saying and then I know the rest of you will get it.

God sent you a message by his prophet Isaiah, "I set my face like a flint." The prophet was saying this was what Jesus would do, that is what we want to do. You know flint means something hard, but it don't mean Jesus had a hard, cold, ugly face, but that His face was hard against sin, evil wickedness and all the things His father did not like.

There were lines of suffering on His face, but those were lines of beauty because they were made there by love for us, by His suffering on the cross. Jesus died for you and for me. We want to do something for Him, we want to set our faces like flints against anything that he does not like.

We want to set our faces like a flint to walk with Him. He is coming soon, we know, for He has sent us His word to tell us. When he comes we want to be ready and glad to meet Him just as we are now when father comes home when he has been away a long time. Little Tim, a London street sweeper, set his face like a flint to do what Jesus wanted him to do. He didn't have a chance to know about Jesus as soon as you children, but as soon as he did know he went to work. He was sick, a cripple, but as he lay on his bed of straw up on the top floor of a tenement house he printed verses from the Bible and dropped them out of his window. He hoped some one would find them and learn about Jesus too. His little friend Bob helped by getting the Bible, pencil and paper for Tim from the mission. A man was hit by one of these verses. It made him think of Jesus and made him love Him too. Bob helped him find Tim. He wanted to take Tim to his home where he wouldn't be cold nor hungry any more, but Tim could not go for he had set his face like a flint to send those messages for Jesus. Children, Jesus wants you to set your faces like a flint to serve Him.

Again the message rang clear and true. Jesus Christ, the supreme need of the clean, pure, moral man at the evening service. "Jesus, beholding him loved him, and said unto him, one thing thou lackest." We are so apt to think the harlot, the drunkard and the outcasts are the ones in need of a Savior. This young man was so pure and so clean that Jesus, looking on him, loved him and because of this love dared put his finger on the unclean spot and show it to him. Jesus must be honest, let us be honest with our moral friends and show them their one lack. That young man went away sorrowful? Did he ever come back? No, where in the book do we find him? Some of you moralists here are doing the same thing tonight. The most of you Christians are holding back something from Jesus Christ. I don't know what it is, you know and God knows, and it is keeping you from the baptism of the Holy Spirit. Do you know Jesus Christ as the baptism, he who baptizes with the Holy Ghost? If you don't you have lost something mighty big out of your Christian life. Take that one thing out of your life that Jesus Christ is touching now while I am speaking to you and let Him baptize you.

MUTUAL BENEFIT

READING CIRCLE CONSIDERS STUDIES IN CHILD DEVELOPMENT

The Mutual Benefit Reading Circle almost completed the reading yesterday of Julia Clark Hallam's "Studies in Child Development," having for the special topic of discussion "Adolescence." This was subdivided into the consideration of the adolescent boy and adolescent girl. The writer's object is to advise mothers of the necessity of preparing themselves to understand and deal with the problems of this period as they present themselves and fortify themselves with patience, comradeship and sympathy for and with their sons and daughters.

Next week review questions will be given out for outside preparation. Also the Circle will read Patterson Du Bois' small volume, "Beckonings of Little Hands," a collection of experiences of a father in his relationship with a family of children.

Those present yesterday were: Mrs. A. M. Beaman, Mrs. R. T. Burr, Mrs. C. M. Brubaker, Mrs. F. H. Cassell, Mrs. James Campbell of Pasadena, Mrs. J. W. Cousins, Mrs. George Dewey, Mrs. Harry Duey, Mrs. F. Vernon Hall, Mrs. R. V. Henry, Mrs. H. B. Howeth, Mrs. N. C. Kelley, Mrs. O. C. Logan, Mrs. H. D. Lockwood, Mrs. B. H. Nichols, Mrs. Gibbons, Mrs. J. S. Jackson, Mrs. C. E. Rathbone, Mrs. T. S. Sampson, Mrs. J. H. Southard and the hostess, Mrs. Chas. H. Toll.

BROTHERHOOD RALLY

The regular monthly meeting of the Brotherhood of the First Methodist church will be held this evening. The men all meet in the church social hall at 6:30 for dinner which promises to be quite an affair. After the eats there will be an address by Rev. A. Ray Moore, district superintendent of the Pasadena district. Mr. Moore is a man with a message and will doubtless have something with a "punch." He will deal with the relation of real, red-blooded men to the cause of Christianity and the Bible school.

These monthly meetings of the Brotherhood are coming to mean much to the men and there will doubtless be a large attendance. All men of the church and friends included.

CLUB RECIPROCITY

Wednesday was Reciprocity day for the Wednesday Morning club and for the Hollywood Woman's club. Mrs. Blake Franklin and Mrs. Mabel Ocker were luncheon guests and enjoyed an afternoon program at the Wednesday Morning club as representatives of the Tuesday Afternoon club. Mrs. H. E. Bartlett, president; Mrs. R. A. Blackburn and Mrs. Mattison B. Jones were the Glendale representatives at Hollywood where an interesting reciprocity program was given in the afternoon. All of these ladies enjoyed a very profitable and delightful time.

DEATH OF G. PETERSEN

G. Petersen, a native of Sweden and formerly a sailor, who had been living at Tujunga for the past month died suddenly this morning (Thursday). Mr. Petersen was engaged in building a fire when he dropped dead. The Pulliam Undertaking Company has charge of the remains. An effort is being made to learn whether or not the deceased has any relatives living.

gave it to you and is waiting to give it yet to millions who will take it.

That rich young ruler turned his back on Jesus to spend eternity in hell because he would not part with that one thing, the surrender of his will to God. Christians, it is an awful thing not to let Jesus Christ fill you with His spirit.

The meeting will continue under the charge of Mr. Habbick until Wednesday night. Tonight at 7:30 Mr. Habbick will speak on "Amusements," giving his own experience. Come hear a man tell how God for Jesus Christ's sake gave him life and liberty. Every night at 7:30 God is spreading a feast. He invites you to come.

STORM DELAYS SEARCH FOR AVIATORS

ARMY FLIERS TO CONTINUE HUNT FOR MISSING COMRADES TO-DAY

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

CALEXICO, Jan. 18.—A driving rain and a strong wind made it impossible for the three army aviators to make an ascent to-day in the continuation of their search for their two companions who have been missing more than a week. They hope to be able to make an ascent during the day. A number of autos in search of the missing men were stalled but the search continues. It is hoped the rain may help the missing aviators in case they are stranded in an arid region. The searching party were disappointed in not being able to ascend this morning as they were confident of finding some trace of the lost ones to-day.

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 18.—Mrs. Thomas L. Caldwell of Alhambra, who was rescued at 3 o'clock this morning on the Mt. Wilson trail in a critical condition owing to cold and exposure, is still lying unconscious this afternoon at Ye Alpine Tavern on Mt. Lowe. Mrs. Caldwell and her husband left the tavern yesterday afternoon for a walk. It began to snow and they lost their way, finally finding themselves on the Mt. Wilson trail half frozen and exhausted from their battle with the elements. Mr. Caldwell found it necessary to leave his wife on the trail and return to the tavern for help. A party went in search of the woman and brought her back to the tavern.

WILL THE BOOK STAND?

EVANGELIST ANDROSS REPLIES TO INFIDELS, GEOLOGISTS AND HIGHER CRITICS

Infidels, geologists and higher critics alike have failed in their repeated attempts to disprove the authenticity and historical accuracy of the Bible, according to Evangelist Celian Andross, who spoke at Evangel Hall, 115 South San Fernando road, last night, on the subject, "Will the Old Book Stand?"

He called attention to Voltaire's assertion that "in less than a hundred years Christianity will have been swept from existence" and the infidel's further boast that "the Bible is an exploded book." Twenty-five years ago the noted atheist, R. G. Ingersoll, made the statement that in ten years the Bible will not be read," added Mr. Andross. "Yet today more copies of the Bible are sold annually than of any other one hundred books combined. Ten million Bibles in English are distributed every year. The Oxford Press of England, one of the oldest Bible houses, issues 20,000 Bibles a week, 1,040,000 a year. The rapidly increasing circulation of the Word of God is shown by the fact that the first year the American Bible Society was organized it distributed 6410 copies of the Scriptures, and after 97 years of existence in 1912 it distributed 4,096,610. In spite of the war the circulation is increasing annually.

"Though modern geologists deny the Bible record of the creation and the flood, telling us the earth was evolved through millions of years to its present condition, yet God has caused the mute testimony of the rocks to confound their vaunted wisdom. The cretaceous and devonian rock strata, which geologists tell us were deposited ten million years apart, are, as a matter of fact, found lying one directly upon the other with the supposedly older strata on top, this condition prevailing over thousands of square miles of the earth's surface. This is attested by the Canadian government report. Thus is the theory of geological evolution completely upset. Sir Archibald Geikie, director general of the British Geological Survey, speaking of some sections of rock in Ross Shire, England, where conditions are similar to those just mentioned, says that 'when a geologist finds things in this condition he may be excused if he begins to wonder whether he himself is not really standing on his head.'

"Higher criticism has charged that the Bible records are not historically true. Most people have read the story of Belshazzar's feast of wine in the ancient city of Babylon; of the mysterious handwriting on the wall, pronouncing the city's doom, and of the subsequent destruction of the city by Cyrus the Mede. Bible critics declared this record of Daniel to be only a myth, for such a man as Belshazzar, they said, was unknown to history. However, a clay cylinder, containing the name of Belshazzar and saying that he was a descendant of Nebuchanezar, has been excavated from the ancient ruins of the east.

"Moses' story of the bondage of the Israelites in Egypt has been called a fable by those who would reason away the Scriptures. In Exodus 5 we read of the Hebrew slaves being compelled by their Egyptian taskmasters to make sun-dried brick. But when Moses and Aaron appeared as the leaders of the people and urged Pharaoh to release them the haughty king increased their burdens. And Pharaoh commanded the same day the taskmasters of the people and their officers, saying, 'Ye shall no more give the people straw to make brick, as heretofore; let them go and gather the straw for themselves. And the tale of the bricks, which they did make heretofore, ye shall lay upon them; ye shall not diminish ought thereof. So the people were scattered abroad throughout all the land of Egypt to gather stubble instead of straw.'

The very buildings which these Hebrews constructed have been unearthed, after having been covered by the shifting sands of the Nile valley for centuries. Careful scrutiny has shown that the bricks in the lower part of the walls contained straw in the clay. Higher up in the same walls short stubble has been substituted in the bricks for the straw and the topmost bricks contained no binder of any kind. This circumstantial evidence of the historical accuracy of the Bible record defies all gainsaying. All that the Bible asks in every such case is that all the facts be known. Its

STRANGE COINCIDENCE

WIFE OF ADMIRAL DEWEY TWICE BEREFT ON SAME DAY OF YEAR

Rather a strange coincidence in connection with Admiral Dewey's death has been called to our attention by Mrs. W. F. Richardson of Glendale. Mrs. Dewey, previous to her marriage to Admiral Dewey, was Mrs. W. B. Hazen, her first husband being General Hazen, who at the time of his death was head of the U. S. Signal Service. His death occurred on January 16, 1887, and Admiral Dewey's death occurred on January 16, 1917, both on the same day of the same month in a year ending with 7. Admiral Dewey is also to be buried in Arlington cemetery, where General Hazen was laid to rest. General Hazen was the uncle of Mrs. Richardson, who for a short time made her home with the General and his wife, the present Mrs. Dewey, when General Hazen was commander of Fort Gibson in Indian territory. Mrs. Dewey before her marriage to Gen. Hazen was Miss Mildred McLean, daughter of Washington McLean, nationally known as editors of the Cincinnati Inquirer.

MISSIONARY MEETING

The regular monthly meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society of the Presbyterian church was held in the lecture room of the church on Tuesday. Rev. J. B. Habbick brought the gospel message of the afternoon and Mr. Cameron Johnson of Richmond, Va., was the speaker, the topic being "China." Mr. Johnson delivered a very splendid address, telling of the personalities of the wonderful men and women he had met in the missionary field in China, among others Hudson Taylor of the China Inland mission, and the first woman missionary who went into Thibet. Mr. Johnson returned from the foreign field six or seven years ago feeling that he could accomplish more good by interesting young people in the foreign field and is devoting himself to this work in the home land. Mr. Johnson and his wife, who was Miss Belle Richardson, a daughter of O. S. Richardson of Glendale, spent about eight years in the foreign field, during which time they visited all the missions in the Orient. Mr. and Mrs. Johnson are stopping at the home of Mrs. Johnson's sister, Mrs. C. R. Butterfield, and will be here for several weeks.

CONVICT LABORERS ON MOUNTAIN LATERALS

Convict labor on state highways is one of the solvents for California's tremendous mountain road problem.

Ever since the "days of old, the days of gold," which Bret Harte describes as "heaven for men and dogs, but hell for women and children," the mountain road problem of California has been beyond her resources. For years to come it must be so.

The convict building such roads takes work from no man, but does work that otherwise could not be done; makes available acres for the landless that otherwise would not be opened; stirs up counties to local road improvement that increases vastly the sum total of road work open for the free road builders of California.

The intent of the convict labor law is to build roads of a character and in locations that otherwise are beyond the resources of the State.

No better description could be given of the laterals demanded by the Highway Act to connect the trans-Sierra county seats with the trunk line in the valley. Unfortunately where people and land values are not, road costs are highest. And the needs of these mountain communities, blocked by snow from the balance of the State for half the year, are the most acute. Yet this is the part of California that should be the playground of the nation, and a tremendous financial asset to the State.

On the other hand is the prison population of the State: 4,000 men—outcasts, hopeless—a financial and social burden.

In California at least this is a problem of young men, their average age less than thirty, men who are coming out to live the greater part of their lives as increasing assets or liabilities.

The convict labor law brings the need and the man together, on a working basis that appeals to both.

The law became effective last August. In September the first camp of thirty men was established in northern Mendocino. The scope of the work was gradually enlarged, on a safety first basis. We carried two camps with 125 men through the winter, working every day but Sunday, through a rain and snow fall of seventy inches. The men have been given sanitary camps that probably surpass and food that at least equals the best free labor camps. We have given them better living and working conditions, a large measure of personal freedom and under the law the crowning incentive of one day's reduction of sentence for every two days of loyal work.

The laying out and direction of the work has been in the hands of the Highway Commission, as well as providing camps, commissary, etc. The discipline of the men has been in the hands of the Board of Prison Directors, represented by three guards without arms in each camp—one acting as captain of the camp, the others as subforemen on the work.

To the intelligent co-operation of these two departments of the state is due the conspicuous success of the scheme.

The humanitarian side of the work is self evident. The men are immeasurably bettered physically, which means mentally and morally. Constructive work instead of the jute mill, under blue skies and among the beauties of mountain California instead of behind stone walls, co-operating with the state instead of being outcasts of the state—these things are alone worth the doing.

But there is another side without which the scheme would not solve the problem for which it is intended.

These men have come soft from prison to a new work under almost impossible weather conditions. We have supplied them with everything they have or use—clothing, transportation, guards, food, beds, medical attention, as well as the ordinary expense for materials and equipment for road work—all this many miles from transportation—and the winter's work shows a profit.

Through the winter eight miles of difficult canyon road has been built for 25 per cent. less than the estimate, and little more than half what similar work has cost on contract in the same locality. As weather conditions improve costs are falling and yardage increasing.

The success of the work in Mendocino led to the placing of a crew from Folsom on a section of the Placerville road, near Shingle Springs. Only an inadequately small amount of maintenance funds were available for this section, but this expedient will give the equivalent of $18,000.00 in work for an expenditure of $5,000.00, and make possible an improved section of a needed road which otherwise must have waited for the next bond issue.

The Commission is now preparing to attack the Sierra lateral question by placing convict camps on each of four of these roads for active construction this summer.

The experimental stage of this scheme is passed.

There is no longer a question that convict labor is not only successful as a humanitarian measure, but that it will make possible the construction of many miles of mountain roads that otherwise could not be built.

PATRIOTISM

Let our object be our country, our whole country and nothing but our country. And, by the blessing of God, may that country itself become a vast and splendid monument, not of oppression and terror, but of wisdom, of peace and of liberty, upon which the world may gaze with admiration forever.—Daniel Webster.

FEAR, THE TORMENTOR

How many useless torments are ours because of fear! Looking back over my own life, I can see that most of my sufferings were due to fears and that they were all, every one of them, both useless and poison. Of all the demons that ride poor mortals, fear is the most malicious.—Irish World.

Although nearly 50,000,000 bushels of rye were produced in the United States in 1915, this is less than 3 per cent. of the world's annual production of the crop. Nearly 80 per cent. of the crop of the United States is grown east of a line from the boundary between Minnesota and North Dakota to the southernmost point of Texas.

USING SCHOOLHOUSES FOR VOTING PLACES

M. B. Hartmann, 1020½ Chestnut street, has been advocating for more than a score of years in his old home city of St. Paul, the plan of using the schoolhouses for election purposes. The schools are built for the people by the people and belong to the people. The old argument was that some who exercise the right of franchise are not sufficiently informed in matters of etiquette and good breeding to frequent temples of learning. This argument seems weak.

Mr. Hartmann is very pleased to learn from a recent number of the Pioneer Press that St. Paul is at last opening a campaign to do away with the unsightly election booths. The movement is being fostered by the city planning and beautification subdivision of the Chamber of Commerce. Election booths are attacked on the grounds that they are an obstruction to traffic in the downtown district, require an unnecessary expenditure, they are an offense to civic pride, there is an acceptable substitute. The use of school buildings will be urged to take the place of the shacks which are used as voting booths.

While unsightly shacks are not moved into conspicuous places to serve as voting places in this part of the country, a part of the argument that the St. Paul people are using applies here. In a great many precincts in this part of California tents are erected at election time and while they are placed on vacant lots and do not obstruct traffic and are not unsightly, there is some expense connected with their erection and removal and it would seem the part of good judgment to use other places as voting places when possible.

The comment is made that the polling place must be taken to the voter. This is a poor excuse and speaks ill for the patriotism of the American citizen. It would seem that a building convenient enough to the home for the children to attend school during the entire year should be convenient enough for the parents to use as a polling place, which privilege is exercised only at infrequent intervals.

It would seem the part of good judgment on the part of those who have this matter in charge to use the schoolhouses for polling places wherever this is possible.

INTERMEDIATE SCHOOL

With the first school term rapidly drawing to a close every department is actively engaged in rounding up work in the form of tests, papers and notebooks to determine final marks.

Despite this general excitement over regular school duties, certain pupils of the music and English departments, who carry play books and sheet music about appear concerned with something else as well. Miss Mallory and Miss Weatherby have not completely divulged the nature of certain secret rehearsals to which these same pupils find their way.

Some have it that these two departments are to jointly present a play and concert at the end of the month. Should this be the case success of the program is assured from the first, if one may judge from past productions of this sort given by the school.

In the field of sports the Intermediate school has been by no means inactive. During the fall season interest centered chiefly upon soccer football with the result that a Junior and First team of undefeatable caliber were organized. Of seven games played the First team won six and tied one, while the Junior team won two games and tied a third.

The following won letters for playing on the Junior team: Freeman Fowler, William Huesman, Emmett Croy, Lloyd VanEpps, Valentine Hollingsworth, Cecil Wilson, Henry Doll, Andrew McDonnell, Paul Burt, Tom Lyons, George Mills.

While the boys were winning their series of soccer games the girls of the school were not idle. Several victorious indoor baseball contests against rival schools won letters for Margaret Crawford, Irene Morgan, Francis Smith, Margaret Ghilie, Dorothy Brown, Helen Beach, Virginia Butterfield, Corinne Heacock, Naomi Platt, Hettie Orth, Erna Studinski and Gladys Fanset.

LUNCHEON AND SEWING CLUB

The luncheon and sewing club, composed of a number of Glendale ladies, met at the home of Mrs. Chas. H. Sanders on North Brand boulevard Wednesday. Luncheon was served in the usual delightful informal cafeteria way and the afternoon was spent in sewing and the enjoyment of some very delightful Victrola and piano music. The club had not met for six weeks, owing to the holidays and the illness of one of the members, so the ladies enjoyed meeting together again. Those present were Mrs. J. S. Hearnshaw, Mrs. Marie Viohl, Mrs. Lettum, Mrs. Mable Reed, Mrs. Reed, Sr., Mrs. H. Lee Clotworthy, Mrs. G. D. Roach, Miss Clara Ringert, Miss Leo Lundy of Los Angeles, Mrs. Geo. Reuter, Mrs. Frank Muhlmann, Mrs. Alfred Muhlmann, Mrs. Sanders, Mrs. W. A. Gibson.

Mrs. C. W. Kimberly and Mrs. Ella Richardson represented the Thursday Afternoon club of Tropico at Hollywood's reciprocity day on Wednesday, while the Tuesday Afternoon club of Glendale was represented by Mrs. H. E. Bartlett, Mrs. Mattison B. Jones and Mrs. Blackburn. "Flood Control" was the subject of the afternoon's address by Mr. Strine, this being the vital question in this section at the present time. The speaker advised those present to get all the information they could on the subject before election. If they were well informed they would certainly vote for the bonds, he said, as no progressive person could vote against them. He spoke of the $20,000,000 loss caused by the flood washing away orchards and all property and the $2,000,000 expended in clearing up the harbor at San Pedro after all this damage had been done. If the bonds are voted, he stated, we would then be able to get money to aid in the work from the state and government. Mrs. May Orcutt Brooke, pianist; Frederick Grover, violinist, and Dr. Paul Wissner, cellist, furnished the musical program.

Man's inhumanity to man has put thousands of lawyers on easy street.

A FEW OBSERVATIONS

Dear Mr. Editor: I would like to ask a few queries in your valuable paper. I travel around a little, about fifty miles a day in Glendale and Tropico and notice a few things. Perhaps some of them your readers notice also.

Why does our city allow two street cars to face up Broadway from Brand on both tracks and run on the wrong side of the street when they won't allow an auto to stand or run on the wrong side. The congested state at this corner of Broadway and Brand is having a tendency of diverting traffic from Verdugo road down Colorado boulevard, instead of through the business section. All the improvements above Glendale avenue will not bring traffic down Broadway until this congestion is remedied. Why not make the electric cars do the switching on Brand Blvd. where the street is wider?

The worst street in Glendale is Ninth street between Brand and Central. If you don't believe it try it with your auto. Next worst is Fifth street from Brand to Everett. I've had some experience so I know the remedy. Let the street man go round with some asphalt and rock and fill up some of the holes like 9th street has been done recently from Glendale avenue to Verdugo road.

Why so much speeding down Broadway of autos and motorcycles? It's such a nice surface and very tempting and right past the police and fire station. Wonder they ain't afraid the police will get them. How is it that the streets in the Richardson tract, Tropico, only get attention about once in every decade, at election time? Perhaps the people down that way don't pay any taxes.

Why don't the Tropico trustees make the street cars grade the crossings where all streets cut through? Take Gardena avenue. It's very dangerous to have to cross near the S. P. railroad tracks and P. E. tracks. The two combined is like tempting fate. Try it when there's something coming four ways at once.

Why is it there are so many store rooms empty in Glendale and Tropico? Is it because the owners are asking too much rent? Houses to rent are scarce. Lower the rents and get them occupied.

Why are our public schools having so many lawn tennis racquets and other games installed? Is it to help lower taxes?

Why don't the city plant fruit trees in the parkway typical of California climate so tourists could have a taste free of this glorious country. Signed by one who goes about with eyes shut.

F. BOOTH,
The Coffee King.

BIG SHIPMENT OF FRUITS

The basement of the Lyons grocery, opposite the city hall, looks like a store room for a packing house. The first of the week a big shipment of canned fruits and vegetables was received which had been purchased last July and Riley Lyons is busily engaged in filling case lot orders.

THE NEW FORM OF SECURITIES CREATED BY THE FEDERAL FARM LOAN ACT

(Written for the United Press.)
WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—As explained before in these articles, the operations of the Farm Loan Act are divided into two main classes—a money assembling agency and a money lending agency.

The government puts the first nest egg into the farm loan plan by buying the original capital stock of the twelve Federal Land Banks if necessary. When this has been loaned and farm mortgages taken in return for the money loaned, the Federal Land Banks may issue bonds against these mortgages.

These bonds will be among the most attractive securities ever offered to American investors. As explained before, farmers are permitted to borrow only up to 50 per cent of the value of their land. This means that every dollar's worth of bonds issued represents $2.00 worth of land as security.

The fact that each Federal Land Bank guarantees the bonds of all the other banks also puts behind these bonds as security the nine million dollars original capital stock of the bank and their required surplus earnings, plus the required annual deduction of the mortgage loan.

Besides this, the security constantly increases proportionately by reason of the constantly increasing capital contributed by the Farm Loan Association.

So the investment end of the Farm Loan Act is fully as important as the money lending end, because it creates for the benefit of small and large investors a security backed by pooled first mortgages on farm lands, the proceeds being used to increase the productive power and enhance the value of these mortgaged lands.

Since the rate of interest to the farmer depends upon the rate of interest at which these bonds will sell congress went the limit to make these bonds attractive so they would sell at a low interest rate. The bonds are exempt from all forms of taxation. The government will not even collect any income tax upon them. No state or municipality may tax them for any purpose.

In order to make these bonds appeal to investors of all classes they are issued in denominations of from $25 to $1000.

In order to protect them against counterfeiting they are issued by the United States Government Bureau of Engraving and Printing and are protected from counterfeiting by the whole force of the United States Secret Service.

Heretofore it has been practically impossible for the small investor to buy real estate securities. A man or woman who wanted to buy $100 worth of farm securities was not able to find a farm mortgage of just that size.

In addition, the investor would not buy such a mortgage without inspecting the security. The cost and the bother were barriers which made it almost impossible for the small investor to get first mortgage securities.

Hereafter it will be possible for any investor who wants to buy farm securities from $25 up merely to apply for a Federal Farm Loan Bond of the denominations desired.

The investor will know that this bond represents $2.00 worth of land appraised under government supervision and that the bond was issued under government regulation.

The rate of interest at which these bonds will be issued has not yet been determined by the Federal Farm Loan Board. It is safe to predict that in the beginning it will not be less than four and not more than five per cent.

The benefits of the Farm Loan Act are not limited to farmers who need the use of cheaper capital, but they include also those persons who have money to invest and are seeking a long time, readily marketable security of undoubted value.

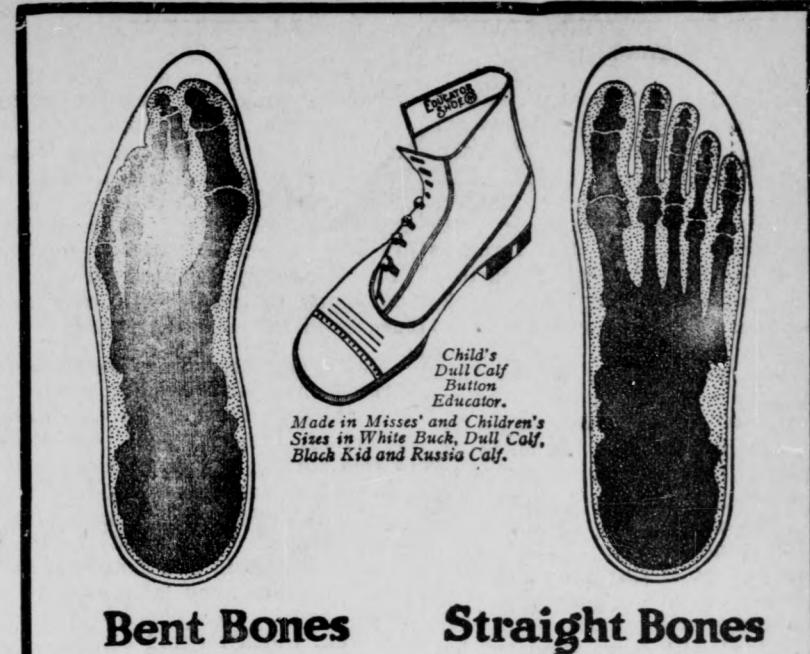

LITERARY SECTION STUDIES

POETRY

The Literary Section of the Tuesday Afternoon club held its regular meeting on Tuesday with Mrs. A. L. Weaver. There was a good attendance and four new members were added to the roll. "Poetry" was the topic of the afternoon. The life of William Cullen Bryant and some of his best known poems were given by Mrs. Albert D. Pearce. Mrs. Claude Case read several beautiful poems by Sidney Lanier. The beloved Hoosier poet, James Whitcomb Riley, was the subject of Mrs. H. V. Evans' paper, and Mrs. R. C. Lane read a number of miscellaneous poems by different authors. Each subject was cleverly handled and added its share to an afternoon of pleasure and profit.

THE SCHOOL MUSEUM AT SANTA BARBARA

Down at Santa Barbara they have established a school museum. It is housed in an old Spanish adobe with a tile roof and thick walls, built long before the gringos came. The museum is administered by the school board; in fact, it is the apple of both eyes of Dr. George P. Goll, a member of the board. It seems that Dr. Goll was formerly connected with the Philadelphia Commercial Museums, hence his interest in the little museum in Santa Barbara.

Dr. Goll has secured from the Philadelphia museums a most instructive exhibit of commercial products. The exhibit is arranged in case drawers, the tops being covered with glass. One case contains an excellent exhibit of cotton—the seed, the boll, the ginned cotton, cotton thread, cotton cloths, cottonseed oil, cottonseed cake and other cotton products. A legend gives information about each feature.

Another case contains the fiber of hemp, sisal, jute and other plants used in manufacturing rope and grain bags. Cattle products, cocoa, sugar, tin, copper and a hundred other products are represented. Here is an exhibit of woods used in manufactures; over there is a collection of Indian relics; over in the corner a big stone seat on which a priest of the Incas sat during the offering of sacrifices.

This collection of commercial products will serve a most useful purpose in the teaching of a commercial geography. In case a state bureau of visual education is organized it would be well to include provision for traveling commercial exhibits similar to the one installed at Santa Barbara.—Contributor.

THE ART OF MAKING STAINED GLASS

The making of glass is an ancient art, so ancient, in fact, that its origin or discovery or invention disappears in the midst of fables. That the early peoples of Egypt, Chaldea and Phoenicia were familiar with glassmaking in all its forms is shown by the fragments unearthed by the explorer. The old Greeks and Romans have shown us varied examples. But the art of glazing windows is not known further back than the Third Century before Christ. At this early date in the far east colored windows were made by setting gem-like pieces of pot metal in perforated wooden or stone panels. The Orient still produces this kind of windows.

The advent of Christianity gave a great impetus to the making of windows. The early basilicas were richly provided with large windows, but the full beauty of glass windows did not appear until the advent of Gothic architecture, in which large window openings play an important part. Gothic window openings demanded a material strong enough to exclude the cold, yet sufficiently translucent to light the vast spaces of the high, groined roofs. The wall spaces being small in proportion to the window openings, the latter lent themselves most readily to the decorator's art.

The mosaic form was the earliest; then glass was painted with figures or portraits or landscapes. But just as the atmospheric changes began to affect this style a discovery was made in Limoges, in France, where a colony of Venetian glass workers had settled as early as the year 979 A. D. This new process consisted in painting the glass with metallic pigments, which could be fused into it and made a part of it. The oldest painted picture window that has resisted the action of time is one in the cathedral of Le Mans.

In the fifteenth century the art began to decline. In the sixteenth it had become so commercialized that its artistic qualities were gone, and with the coming of the reformation and its strong revolt against the pomp and show whereby the Catholic church had endeavored to influence and hold the peasantry the Protestants in various lands, and notably in England and Scotland, swayed to the other extreme. With hammers they destroyed the beautiful windows and defaced the fine carvings. These things were an outward and visible sign of all that they detested, and their holy zeal went astray. But one reading the history of the church in those days can readily understand why they were swept off their feet.

Plain windows and unembellished buildings long held their sway. The circumstances under which this country was settled, being also a revolt against wicked living and license in all forms, led to the continuance of a severe form of building for the early places of worship. But, by and by, the people came to understand that their churches should be the same type as their homes. If the members were able to surround themselves with beauty and comfort God's house should also be beautiful and comfortable. So Christian people, in the building of suitable edifices and the installation of artistic windows, when the spirit is not one of mere rivalry in striving to outdo their neighbors, are rendering service to the Lord in beautifying the temple where they gather especially to meet with Him. —The Presbyterian.

"Mistah Gov'nah," the old negress was pleading with the chief executive of a southern state, "we's mighty po' dis wintah, and Al shoo does wish you'd pardon my ol' man. He's in de penitentiary."

FIRST CONSIDERATION

A teacher who was firmly convinced that a knowledge of the paintings and sculpture of the world was as essential as the "rule of three" had been explaining to her young wards some of the history connected with Rodin's famous statue, "The Thinker." She then asked the children what they thought he was thinking about.

"Oh, I know," replied one little girl. "He's lost his clothes, and he's wondering where he's going to get some." —Harper's Magazine.

PICKED THE RIGHT SPOT

Tuesday and Wednesday of this week is reported by old residents as being the coldest in several years. The thermometer registered 36 degrees Tuesday and 38 Wednesday. With the wind blowing a gale and the snow flying reminds us of the stormy weather of back east.

J. T. Ward, former manager of the Colony store, has been very sick for the past two weeks and is yet in a critical condition at this writing. His many friends are hopeful of a speedy turn for the better very soon.

Mrs. Hitchcock and son of Glendale have moved into the Graft cottage and will remain indefinitely pending the young man's health. Young Hitchcock, who has been suffering with asthma for some time, finds his only relief in the climate at Tujunga.

The Maygrove orchestra in connection with our schools are preparing a school play and musical to be given in about two weeks, the proceeds to go towards purchasing a piano for the school. It is the intention to organize a school orchestra as soon as the piano is secured.

The two Lewis families, who recently came here from Utah, have their new houses on Michigan avenue completed and are domiciled therein.

Many tourists and prospective settlers have visited this section recently and every one is loud in his praise of our little village.

It is reported to us by good authority that we are to have a new library building this coming summer. "Hellow! Is that you, mother dear?"

"Yes, Sue, what is it? Something awful must have happened for you to call me up at this—"

"It isn't so awful. But John hasn't been feeling well and the doctor gave pills to take every four hours. I've been sitting up to give them to him and now it's about time for his medicine and he has fallen asleep. Should I awaken him?"

"I wouldn't if I were you. What is he suffering from?"

"Insomnia." —Exchange.
